

Nowhere To Go But Up & Clean Your Financial Closet

Dear Valued Investor:

Investors like labels for the economy and financial markets—many of them with the word “great” in them. The Great Depression. The Great Recession. The Great Lockdown. Well, we’ve moved into what we might call the Great Disconnect. How can stocks have rebounded so strongly in the last month amid so much suffering and economic damage? What’s Wall Street seeing that so many on Main Street are not?

For one, in the United States more than 20 states have already begun to reopen their economies, and others have plans to begin very soon. In Europe, lockdowns are being eased, following Asia’s lead. Even gradual progress like this may help the stock market focus more on what’s ahead than where we are right now.

As lockdown restrictions are lifted, timely indicators like vehicle traffic, electricity consumption, public transportation use, daily consumer confidence surveys, and a wide variety of weekly economic indicators point to a low mark in economic activity in the United States in April. The “Great Lockdown” recession of 2020 may be over already—although it may not be officially declared a recession for several more months.

Nowhere to go but up isn’t normally very reassuring, but to the stock market it may be. Historically, when things have looked their worst, the opportunity in stocks has tended to be the best. The S&P 500 Index has usually hit its bottom and started the climb back up about five months before a recession has ended.

Other factors have helped boost investor sentiment recently. Market participants have gained confidence from the bold stimulus response from policymakers in Washington, DC, and the Federal Reserve. The total amount of the stimulus this year is about 22% of the entire US economy, based on gross domestic product (GDP). During the entire 2008–09 financial crisis, the total amount of stimulus was 16.6% of GDP. And there may be more. Surging unemployment and weakening finances at the state and municipal levels may be catalysts for more action. Though millions of jobs have been lost to this crisis, many millions surely have been saved as well.

The medical community also has provided reasons for optimism. Though no one knows for sure when a COVID-19 vaccine will be ready, rapid progress is being made, and several promising candidates are now in human trials. Testing capacity has also ramped up, while some of the best capitalized and most innovative companies in the world are developing contact-tracing tools to help facilitate safe re-openings. While stocks may have come a bit too far, too fast in the short term, markets are clearly responding to these positive developments.

Reopening the US economy will be a gradual process, and temporary setbacks may be possible. Some of the lost jobs may not return. The possibility of disappointment as the “Great Reopen” unfolds is real. We are facing a tremendous challenge, but it is being met with incredible resilience, resourcefulness, and innovation. Together we will get through this crisis and return to better times.

Please take care, and don’t hesitate to contact me if you have any questions or concerns.

Clean Your Financial Closet As You Shelter In Place

See tips to take action now to better organize and plan your financial life.

Key Takeaways:

- Look for ways to boost your cash on hand, so you can get through this period without running up debt or tapping into your retirement savings.
- Stick to your long-term investment mix to have enough growth potential to achieve your goals.
- Good credit can help you qualify for lower interest rates to help finance things like cars, homes, and other necessities. Know your credit score.

If you're sheltering in place these days, you probably have a little extra time on your hands. Maybe you've cleaned out that junk drawer or reorganized your clothes closet.

What about your financial closet? To help you take better control of your financial situation and personal economy, here are some tips to help you get better organized, feel empowered, and take control of your financial future.

IMPORTANT DISCLOSURES

This material is for general information only and is not intended to provide specific advice or recommendations for any individual. There is no assurance that the views or strategies discussed are suitable for all investors or will yield positive outcomes. Investing involves risks including possible loss of principal. Any economic forecasts set forth may not develop as predicted and are subject to change.

References to markets, asset classes, and sectors are generally regarding the corresponding market index. Indexes are unmanaged statistical composites and cannot be invested into directly. Index performance is not indicative of the performance of any investment and do not reflect fees, expenses, or sales charges. All performance referenced is historical and is no guarantee of future results.

All data is provided as of May 6, 2020.

Any company names noted herein are for educational purposes only and not an indication of trading intent or a solicitation of their products or services. LPL Financial doesn't provide research on individual equities.

This Research material was prepared by LPL Financial, LLC. All information is believed to be from reliable sources; however LPL Financial makes no representation as to its completeness or accuracy.

Member FINRA / SIPC

Tracking# 1-05007832

Rebecca Tapia
Financial Consultant
Education & Communication Specialist
direct: (415) 808-1369
fax: (415) 778-0301
rebeccat@heffgroup.com
www.heffgroupfs.com

Rebecca Tapia is a registered representative with, and securities and advisory services offered through LPL Financial, a Registered Investment Advisor, Member FINRA/SIPC. Investment advisory services offered through Global Retirement Partners, LLC, a registered investment advisor. Global Retirement Partners, LLC, Heffernan Retirement Services and Heffernan Financial Services are separate non-affiliated entities from LPL Financial.

This email and any attachments are solely for the use of the intended recipient (or an authorized agent of the intended recipient). This communication may contain information that is proprietary, privileged, confidential or otherwise legally exempt from disclosure. If you have received this email by mistake, you are not authorized to read, print, retain, copy or disseminate it or any attachment. Please notify the sender by reply email and delete this message and any attachments from your computer system.

To ensure compliance with applicable Internal Revenue Service regulations, any tax advice contained in this email was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of avoiding penalties under the Internal Revenue Code. Please note that all trade orders are not accepted and are not acted upon by email, facsimile, voicemail or with unlicensed personnel. All orders must be communicated personally to your representative.

In accordance with industry regulations, all messages are retained and are subject to monitoring.

Rebecca Tapia CA Insurance License #018899, CRD #5146175